"Whispering Giant" in Plymouth

"Enisketomp" - a giant form honoring the native American people - has risen in Plymouth, Mass. The Whispering Giant -- a 40-foot sculpture hand-carved from a 25,000 pound, 200-year-old Red Oak tree from the Berkshire Hills - is at the Regional Information Center on Route 3 (exit 5) in Plymouth.

The sculpture, a gift to the people of Massachusetts and the United States, is the work of 35-year-old Peter Toth. Toth is a Hungarian-born artist whose objective is to promote understanding between America's native Indian people and the nation's other citizens. To accomplish this goal, he has set out to create a trail of monuments honoring American Indians in each of the 50 states. The Plymouth sculpture is his 44th work.

"Enisketomp" (the Wampanoag word for Human Being) was dedicated in a public ceremony Sunday, July 24th.

Peter Toth was born in Budaors, Hungary. At the age of eight he witnessed the Russian takeover of his country. Then, during the bloody uprising in 1956, he and his family fled Communism. Their search for a better life led them to the United States, where they settled in Akron, Ohio. His early personal experiences with injustice fostered in Toth a deep sense of kinship with the native American people, whom he feels were victims of long abuse and injustice.

Toth believes the United States is the greatest country in the world. He cites John F. Kennedy's quote, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country", as the inspiration for his one-man crusade to honor the American Indian.

For 12 years Toth has traveled the United States, carving his 20 to 40 foot tall giant statues from stone and wood. His giants, valued at up to $100,000 each, stand in parks, along interstate highways and on courthouse lawns in 41 states. Toth accepts no government grants, tax monies or private contributions for his work. He supports himself through sales of his book, Indian Giver, and sales of a few small sculptures he works on during the evenings.

Selectmen's Meeting

October 4, 1983 by Virginia Arral

BARLOW CEMETERY DETERIORATION

Selectmen agreed Tuesday to the formation of a committee to research and take appropriate action toward the preservation of damaged and dislocated stones at Barlow Cemetery (located behind the Holy Ghost Grounds).

The board, who act as Board of Trustees of the cemetery, will announce at a later meeting who will comprise the committee. Chairman John DeCosta said young people riding dirt bikes have ruined the area. He noted the police department will be asked to check the area periodically on weekends for vandalism.

The condition of the cemetery was brought to the Selectmen's attention by a letter from Priscilla Hathaway of the Mattapoisett Historical Commission. She recommended a member of the Board of Selectmen be designated (DeCosta has volunteered), Aileen Tiffany from the Historical Society, Barney Helfand, caretaker of the cemetery, herself, representing the Historical Commission, and other interested persons serve on the committee.

DeCosta added that he has been trying for 20 years to get something done at the cemetery but that the State had given us a hard time.

Mrs. Hathaway recommended goals for the committee to decide what preservation steps can properly be done under the laws of the Commonwealth; and, secondly, to seek the most appropriate way to display these stones in the future. "There is no more time if we are to salvage what is left of these historic stones," wrote Mrs. Hathaway.

GRANGE HALL

Continuing on an historic note, Carol Adams, executive secretary, told Selectmen she has received calls from real estate agents asking to see the inside of the Grange Hall and inquiring about a possible sale.

At the recent special town meeting, voters gave Selectmen the authority to dispose of the Grange Hall.

The Hall was listed in the National Register of Historical Buildings in 1976. The building, built in 1816 as a church, has only been used recently to store sports equipment. The Grange's last meeting there was six years ago. The town accepted ownership in 1979 but has no money to maintain it.

The board agreed to place an advertisement in the local papers to either sell the hall for no less than $50,000 or to lease it for no less than 40 years. There would be a provision that the hall be maintained to preserve the historical restrictions on the deed.

MET WITH FINANCE COMMITTEE

Selectmen discussed with members of the Finance Committee the possibility of changing the present one-year budget set up to a three-year, long-term structure.

Michael O'Brien, chairman of the Finance Committee, noted the committee hasn't taken an official vote on the subject but that the majority seem to favor a longer term budget, especially for capital expenditures.

O'Brien personally felt things have been going well. He said the fire department and the highway department have been good about letting them know when a big item was needed. He further noted that the police department has a built-in three-year contract and that schools are looking ahead in their budget planning.

The board agreed to let the department heads know we are thinking about a three-year regular budget and a five-year budget for capital items. Briefly discussed was Selectman Frank Suzan's suggestion that the town should have a small computer system, but all wondered where the money would come from.

PROGRESS ON REVALUATION TEAM

In other business Selectmen received word on the progress of the revaluation team assessing homes in town. In August, eight percent was completed and by October 3, 20 percent has been completed. DeCosta noted if the work remains on schedule the evaluation should be completed by the end of November.

RECEIVED a check in the amount of $100.00 from Anna Reynolds for the purpose of installing a sodium light at town wharf in memory of her father, John Christ. Mrs. Reynolds has requested that the fixture be placed as near to the front of middle wharf as possible since this is where Mr. Christ's boat was docked.

Selectman DeCosta commented that John Christ "was considered one of the best fishermen in Mattapoisett in his day". He said his boat, "The Frolic", was well-known at the wharf and that he owned the New York Sea Grill that was located where the Cathay Temple now stands.

GRANTED a permit to the Mattapoisett Police Department to hold the annual Halloween Parade on Monday, October 31st.

RECEIVED a letter from the Mattapoisett Woman's Club seeking suggestions from the Selectmen as to what the club could donate to enhance the refurbishing on the Town Hall.

The board decided, depending on the amount the club could spend, that the hall could use new drapes. This suggestion will be forwarded to the club.

AGREED to accept the bid of $100.00 from Michele Rentimis for the shellfish warden's outboard motor. This was the only bid received.

Hallowe'en Safety

Halloween with costumes, Trick or Treat, and parties is a fun time for children according to Chief James Moran of the Mattapoisett Police Department.

In the last few years threats of foreign matters found in apples or other treats created a great deal of fright. Cases were investigated by various area police forces and candy manufacturers and found to be untrue, except when a father in Texas was arrested and convicted for introducing a dangerous foreign substance into a treat.

However, Chief Moran and Safety Officer Stan Ennis suggest to parents that they closely check all treats and discard all

LWV CELEBRATES COASTWEEK '83

On Monday, October 17th, at 9:30 a.m. the LWV will sponsor a visit to the Aucoot Cove Marshes, and the public is cordially invited to participate. Naturalist and Educator Margot P. Foster will lead the group on its exploration of these beautiful wetlands on the Marion-Mattapoisett border. Mrs. Foster's theme is "Wetlands, Nurseries of the Sea", and she brings wide experience from teaching environmental science in Washington D.C. and at the Tabor Academy Summer Program.

The group will meet at the Indian Cove Clubhouse (entrance to Indian Cove is on Route 6, ¼ mile east of ORRHS) at 9:30 for refreshments prior to the walk. Wear old clothes and boots, and come rain or shine. The meeting is open to anyone interested.

This program is in conjunction with Coastweek '83, a statewide effort to promote public awareness and appreciation of the great value of the nation's coasts and shorelines. Other groups working with the LWV on this project include the MIT Sea Grant Program, the Massachusetts Coastal Zone Management, the New England Aquarium, and the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

Among the permanent collections in which her paintings hang are numbered the Harvard Law School, the Bristol Community College, the First National Bank of Boston, the Harvard Trust Company, the Cameron and Colby Insurance Company.

Recently her attention has turned to collages - a new look - delicate, airy, an uncommon handling of the varied colored and textured handmade Japanese papers. Watercolor and acrylic are used along with the papers to create an unusual effect.

Joan Parent DeRugeris is primarily a watercolor artist, who for many years has explored design and textures found in nature. Although she is best known for her highly detailed florals her attentions have recently turned to collage. Still using textures and forms from nature, her themes range from Oriental in feeling to humorous plays on society.

Her collages have been on display in the Tropicana Hotel and Casino, Atlantic City, New Jersey.

Born in Long Island, New York, Mrs. DeRugeris took her degree in textile design at the State University of New York, Fashion Institute of Technology. She has headed the art department of a fabric consultant in the city of New York, where her designs were used by leading manufacturers of clothing and linens, as well as by Corning Glass Works where she designed for their consumer product division.

She has worked as an interior designer and taught painting at a community college in Delaware where she and her family lived for eleven years before moving to Mattapoisett last September

The opening of this exhibit will be Friday, October 21st, 6:00 to 8:00 p.m.

The Art Center is open Wednesday through Saturday, 1:00 to 4:00 p.m.

duced, why some trees shed leaves and others don't, and the contribution to the soil made by these fallen leaves each autumn.

Leaf color change and fall is based on a series of bio-chemical and physical changes which occur due to decreasing length of day. In the Lloyd Center's laboratory and classroom Mr. Hankin will demonstrate the processes which are observable in the field and those which can only be observed under laboratory conditions. No prior knowledge of plant anatomy of physiology is required.

ORIENTEERING WORKSHOP

The upcoming Saturday Event at the Lloyd Center for Environmental Studies, 430 Potomska Road, South Dartmouth, is an Orienteering Workshop to be held on Saturday, October 29th, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

This day-long Workshop will address the basic concepts of Orienteering as a life-sport.

Tom Johnston, District Executive of the Boy Scouts' Moby Dick Council and Workshop leader for this program, will give an introductory overview of Orienteering-finding your way with map and compass-including its background and origins in Europe. After familiarizing participants with the use of map and compass together, Mr. Johnston will instruct the group in Orienteering techniques that will allow all to follow a prescribed course through the woods. Participants will have an opportunity to practice following several Orienteering challenges.

During a summary session, Mr. Johnston will offer guidance in developing personal skills, preparing for Orienteering events, and will review information and equipment resources.

This Saturday Event is intended for all interested individuals and would be particularly suitable for a family outing.

Saturday Events at the Lloyd Center provide the general public with a full-day opportunity to pursue a variety of topics.

TRU-TEST PAINTS

PAINTING HELP SPOKEN HERE.

by Rod

Dear Rod,

I bought all the paint for the exterior of my house at your store, but didn't get around to painting. Now I dread the thought of having to stir up all that paint. I also wonder if the paint is still good.

Mattapoisett Resident

Dear M.R.,

We will be glad to mix the paint for you on our shaker.

Yes ... your paint is still good considering you bought it a few months ago.

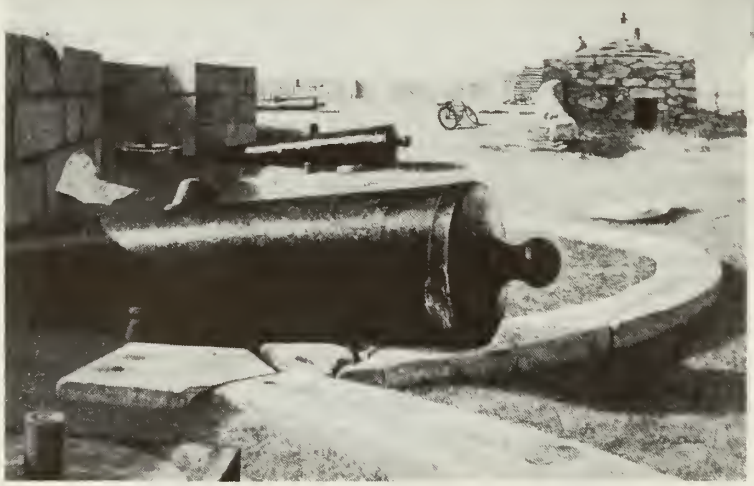
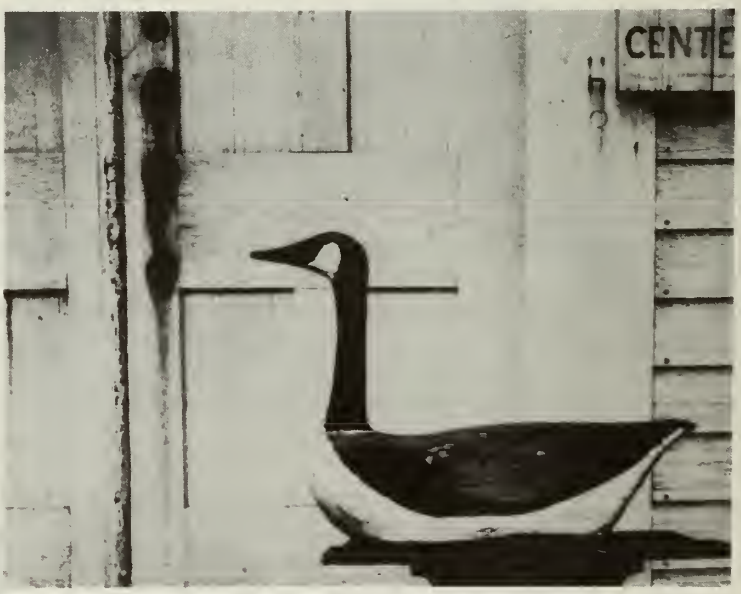
KEN DAVIES EXHIBITION AT WHALING MUSEUM

A major exhibition, "Ken Davies: 35 Years --A New Bedford Homecoming", is featured at the New Bedford Whaling Museum, 18 Johnny Cake Hill, from October 15 through November 30.



"FORT PHOENIX, FAIRHAVEN", BY KEN DAVIES. COURTESY OF THE LEZIUS-HILES COMPANY

Considered one of the foremost still life artists in America today, Mr. Davies is an acknowledged master of the "trompe l'oeil" style. There will be 60 of his paintings in this exhibition.



"ANTIQUE SALE: CANADIAN GOOSE DECOY" BY KEN DAVIES. COURTESY GENERAL MILLS ART COLLECTION.

Mr. Davies represents the latest in a long line of distinguished painters of New Bedford origins. Born in New Bedford in 1925, the artist graduated from the Yale School of Fine Arts in 1950.

He remained in Connecticut to teach at the Whitney School of Art and the Paier School of Art in New Haven, where he served as Dean from 1955-1980 and continues now as Dean Emeritus.

The paintings for this exhibition have been assembled from private and public collections throughout the United States. Included will be four of the famous "Wild Turkey" series, owned by Austin Nichols, Inc.

Mr. Davies has painted two new works especially for the exhibit from objects in the Whaling Museum collections. One of these paintings will be featured on the catalog accompanying the exhibition. A poster will also be available.

In September, the third United States postage stamp designed by Mr. Davies was issued. This stamp commemorates the 100th anniversary of the Metropolitan Opera. The first day cover will be included in the exhibition.

Mr. Davies' paintings hang in such collections as the Wadsworth Atheneum, Hartford, the Detroit Institute of Arts, General Mills, Inc., the Brandywine Museum, Chadds-Ford, Pa., the University of Nebraska, and International-Harvester, Inc.

Also, the New Britain Museum, the Berkshire Museum, Lezius-Hiles, Cleveland and the Hirschl and Adler Galleries, New York, where a major retrospective of his work was held in 1976.

His paintings have been exhibited by invitation at major museums and galleries throughout the United States and in England.

The subjects of Mr. Davies' paintings are "very much his own, carefully organized and precisely rendered," states Richard Kugler, Whaling Museum Director. "So too is the mastery with which he brings us familiar objects freshly seen. His impish wit lies close to the surface; his confidence in his craft is everywhere apparent."

Davies has received critical acclaim from Robert M. Coates in the New Yorker Magazine, from Geoffrey Gerer in the B.B.C. publication, "The Listener", and Time Magazine regarding an exhibition at the Colorado Springs Arts Center.

The Museum is open Monday - Saturday, 9 to 5; Sunday, 1 to 5; closed only Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day. It is $2.00 for adults, children 6-14, $1.00, and under 6, free. Group rates are available.

Hammondtown School are involved in the study of the importance of the cranberry industry to the economy of Massachusetts.

On Thursday, October 6th, Miss Aiken's class visited Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tinkham's bog as an introduction to their unit. The children were shown how the western picker operates, and also how the old-fashioned cranberry scoop is used. The purpose of the hopper was explained by their daughter, Cheryl, as well as the need for a water supply and a sprinkler system.

Miss Aiken and her class thank the Tinkham family for providing them with a very enjoyable and informative outing. The cranberry juice punch and cookies that Mrs. Tinkham served were expecially delicious!

FIRST RATE BRITISH PSYCHOLOGICAL TRAGEDY

North Dartmouth: S.M.U. Theater Company has opened their 1983 fall season with last year's Broadway dramatic success, "The Dresser", by Ronald Harwood, British playwright. The result is a silken-smooth play. As student drama productions go, this was exciting theater. Often one forgot the youthfulness of the players and felt truly transported into the surroundings.

Abe Novic was sterling as The Dresser; vulnerable, nervously energetic and knowledgeable within the confines of his own powerful though servile existence. Novic captured worn youth and vocal temerity in a truly excellent interpretation of the role created on stage and soon to be seen on screen by Tom Courtenay. As the quixotic Sir, Dennis Quinn had a mellifluous voice and wonderful comic sensibility. Although the circulation in his legs revealed when stripped to his underwear youthfulness, Mr. Quinn came near matching Novic's excellence.

Very interesting and authentic support as Her Ladyship Pussy was given by Noel Arsenault. Add Melanie Snipe's competence, and a sensual appearance by Michel Laplume as the young actress who wishes to climb the ladder of theatrical success and you have good ensemble acting.

Dan Murphy's set and lights were hauntingly effective, and Anne M. Couto's costumes attractive additions to a grim script. Director Angus Bailey gives just the right literary treatment to this backstage World War II setting. Bailey's love of Shakespeare is subtly apparent. There were some walking problems, long distances across stage and behind walls which at times interrupted continuity, but this is minor criticism. It's so nice to hear the cadences of our language in well constructed drama which is what "The Dresser" offers.

Ms. Brandau learned the art of smocking from her mother, Anita, and from Alice Hartley, a needlework instructor in the night school program at Old Rochester Reginal High School. She sold handsmocked garments through the Ansel Gurney House while attending college to defray the cost of tuition.

Founder and first president of the Butler Chapter of the Smocking Arts Guild of America, she currently teaches needlework in the Pittsburgh area for the Cooperative Extension Service of Penn State University. Her work has won many awards of excellence in regional competitions and has been accepted by the Guildford Museum in Surrey, England for inclusion in their permanent needlework collection.

Twelve Drummers Drumming features a dozen different smocked Christmas ornaments designed by Ms. Brandau. Simple and fast to complete, the drums are decorated with pearls, beads, ribbons, metallic floss and tiny drumsticks. The ornaments utilize twenty smocking stitches to form the designs. They make excellent projects for individuals who want to try smocking for the first time or who want to learn more stitches.

Each booklet contains illustrated project instructions, smocking and stitch information, and twelve design graphs. More information about the booklet, #1080, is available by contacting Little Miss Muffett, Inc., P.O. Box 10912, Nancy Lynn Lane, B-20, Knoxville, Tenn. 37919.

by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Executive Office of Energy Resources and area contractors, the new exhibit features a 12 volt Wincharger wind-driven generator atop a 70' tower and an interactive exhibit relating the workings of windmills and their potential. The exhibit currently under construction will be officially opened to the public at 11 a.m. on Friday, October 21st. Sharon M. Pollard, Secretary of Energy for the Commonwealth, will be on hand for the festivities. The Secretary will award a $1,000 check to the Museum as the state's contribution to the project.

October 15-22, 1983 has been declared Massachusetts Energy Week by Governor Michael S. Dukakis and the Children's Museum's wind driven generator represents the major energy awareness project in southeastern Massachusetts. In conjunction with the exhibit's grand opening, a drawing will be held for free energy audits. To be eligible for the drawing, visitors to the Museum must drop a card containing their name, address and phone number into a drum. Secretary Pollard will select several winners of free home energy audits from the entries on October 22.

The generator unit is being erected approximately 200 feet south of the Museum building. The generator, which is designed as a demonstration model, will yield 200 watts of electricity, enough to light the exhibit located on the first floor of the Museum. The goal of the exhibit, which includes graphic panels and interactive devices, is to demonstrate that a great deal of energy is inherent in the wind and that this energy can be transformed into electrical energy.

The Museum is grateful to the following area contractors making in-kind contributions to the project: Environomics, New Bedford; L & S Industries, Inc., New Bedford; Mendell Electric Company, Inc., New Bedford; Don Piva Excavating, South Dartmouth. Special thanks to Warren Brough-

Cute, isn't it? That's new siding you're looking at, and a new deck. Plus the roof. Inside this 2 bedroom home (there's room for another bedroom upstairs, if you want to finish it off) are new wiring, new carpets, new bath, and a good heating system. What you can't see in the photo is the hedged and stone-walled yard with all the flower beds. Priced at $69,500., we think it will go fast. We have a key for it, so just give us a call for a showing.

"1,000 YEARS OF JAZZ"

Not only the sounds but some of the sizzle of Old New Orleans is planned for the Bristol Community College Foundation's second annual fund-raising event, "1,000 Years of Jazz", set for 8 p.m. October 15th in BCC's Arts Center Theater.

Hospitality chairman Dale Ferris and her committee will add a touch of Bourbon Street to Elsbree Street by decorating campus lamp posts with New Orleans French Quarter Street signs and festooning the Arts Center lobby with Mardi Gras-like garlands, masks and streamers.

At the champagne reception following the performance, they will serve New Orleans inspired refreshments - featuring a raw oyster bar.

"Jazz" is an internationally acclaimed revue featuring old-time New Orleans musicians and dancers. It has toured nineteen countries in Europe and South America and has performed for American audiences in such places as New York's Lincoln Center and Washington's Ford Theater. The thousand years refers to the combined experience of the old-time Jazz musicians who are the performers.

Five of the musicians are veterans of the early days of New Orleans Jazz. The exception is Barry Martyn, an Englishman, who founded the band to preserve the Louis Armstrong sound. Other band members are Herbert Permillion, trumpet; Floyd Turnham, clarinet and tenor sax; Clyde Bernhardt, trombone and vocals; Alton Pernell, piano and vocals; and Adolphus Morris on the stand-up bass. They perform such songs as "Caledonia", "Oh How I Miss You Tonight", and "When the Saints Go Marching In".

The dancers are all veterans of the 1920's Jazz club scene. Lon Chaney, former prize fighter and the leader, formed the group in 1969 to preserve the art of tap dancing. One reviewer said "You really won't believe your eyes when the super-human quartet of "The Original Hoofers" hits the stage. They have all the styles and all the moves."

Tickets are $25 for the lower theater and $15 for the upper theater, and there are no reserved seats. Tickets may be purchased at the door, from any member of the committee, at any branch of the Bank of New England; Jim Rogers' Cigar Store, 93 North Main Street, Fall River; Bristol Community College, 777 Elsbree Street, Fall River; the Music Box, 186 South Main Street, Fall River; or by calling the college at 678-2811, ext. 112.

SMU Lecture

LECTURE ON HEALTH IN EL SALVADOR AT SMU

"One-third of the population is clinically anemic, and 80 percent of children under five suffer from malnutrition." So says Nurse Anne G. Hargreaves, who was a member of a fact-finding delegation of medical professionals who visited El Salvador in January 1983.

She will report on health conditions in that country in a lecture at Southeastern Massachusetts University on October 18th. The lecture, open to anyone, is scheduled for 7-9 p.m. in the Sunset Room of the SMU Campus Center.

The delegation went at the request of the Committee for Health Rights in El Salvador. Ms. Hargreaves and five doctors and a health educator toured civilian hospitals, a military hospital, prisons, rural clinics, and a refugee camp. They also interviewed representatives of relief organizations and of medical and nursing associations in that country.

Ms. Hargreaves' revelatory report is part

She has appeared as a guest on all three commercial Boston television stations. She received bachelor's and master's degrees from the Boston University School of Education.

The lecture is accredited for two contact hours for RNs. Registration for the lecture will be held at the door at 6:45 p.m. There is a registration fee of $5. For more information call the College of Nursing at 999-8577.

Three countries—the USSR, Saudi Arabia and the United States—continue to produce about one-half of the world's crude oil. Only a few countries have increased production of crude oil since 1980.

Because of conflicts and policy, two former leaders in crude oil production—Iran and Iraq—have dramatically fallen from pre-1980 levels. Overall, world crude oil production peaked at 62.6 million barrels per day (mil b/d) in 1979, and has declined 9.5 mil b/d—15 percent—mainly as a result of depressed economies and worldwide conservation measures.

The Clamborn Spoonholder
HANDMADE

Original Made in 1873

Our Mold Since 1970

This authentic, beautiful spoonholder is an exact copy of the original, which is over 100 years old.

They are hand-made at Fenton Art Glass Co., Williamstown, W. Va. using our own 3-piece mold.

The original spoonholder was given to my grandmother by her grandmother in 1900 for a wedding gift. When it was passed on to me, we used it at every meal. It is quite a conversation piece and everyone who saw it wanted one like it.

We had Fenton make our mold and reproduce this rare piece in several delightful colors. For the person who has everything, here is a rare and useful piece that is a joy to use, beautiful to look at and so really different.

It is an ideal gift for weddings, bridal showers, birthdays, Christmas, as well as for special occasions. The spoonholder is dishwasher-proof and practical, too, a lovely part of any table setting.

We now have 12 beautiful colors: Blue, Green, Red, Amber, Crystal, Amethyst, Milk, Vaseline, Cobalt, Milk Blue, Pink, Custard.
